Description: Sections Cutting is the art that brings processed tissues onto the histology slides. The success of this procedure strictly depends on two main factors: the microtome device which is used for the cutting on one hand, and the personal skills and expertise of the histo-technicians on the other. How to improve both factors and get optimal microtome sections? This educational webinar aims to provide valuable tips on how to avoid the most common pitfalls. Through live webcams our application specialist will show useful practical hints for a successful cutting. The discussion will include the following topics:

- user safety
